1. Trencin Airfield, located four kilometers south of Trencin, possessed a group of buildings on the north side of the Airfield; two of these were four-story, brick buildings with red tile, gable roofs. These buildings were used by the Trencin Advanced Twin Engine Training School for instruction on Siebel aircraft. Among this group of buildings were several bombed-out hangars which had not yet been restored.

2. [redacted] the school [redacted] moved to Trencin from Prostejov in late 1950. [redacted] part of this school had been moved to Gottwaldov during February 1953.
